Leonard Oruko is the Senior Technical Officer Monitoring and Evaluation at ASARECA. Leonard holds a Bsc. Degree in Agriculture and MSc. in Agricultural Economics from the University of Nairobi; and a PhD in Agricultural Economics from the University of Reading UK. On completion of his doctoral studies, he worked for CABI Africa and the International Livestock Research Institute where he analysed the inter-institutional barriers to adoption of technologies. Thereafter, he moved to Uganda where he served as a Technical Advisor to the National Agricultural Research organization (NARO) with support from DFID and the World Bank. While at NARO, he provided strategic advice on economics research and programme management. He took up his current position in 2006 and has developed a monitoring and evaluation system for ASARECA.
